JAMES STEWART NON-COMMITTAL AFTER MEETING WITH H. W. WOOD

Organization Cannot Be Ready for Action Soon Says Expert

THOSE IN CHARGE ARE DETERMINED

They Have Lots of Faith in Their Project Also He Asserts

WINNIPEG, Aug. 24.—That the Alberta wheat pool organization cannot be ready for action for at least two months was the opinion expressed by James Stewart, chairman of the Canada wheat board of 1919-20 and head of the James Stewart Grain company, tonight, when he returned from Calgary.

Mr. Stewart visited Calgary at the request of H. W. Wood, chairman of the Alberta wheat pool organization, who had asked him as one of the prominent figures in the grain world to give the board of trustees any advice possible.

Mr. Stewart tonight made the following statement to the Canadian Press:

"The organization for handling the wheat which is now being organized for the pool cannot be ready for action for at least two months."

Mr. Stewart, upon being questioned as to the probable success of the pool, was non-committal, but he said that those in charge of the organizing of the pool in Alberta seemed full of determination and faith in their project.

"If these two qualities were the only essentials to success," he added, "they should be duly considered."

Mr. Stewart said that the pool would be ready for action for at least two months. He said that the pool would be ready for action for at least two months.

IN MEMORIAM

There should and undoubtedly will be a large turnout to the Memorial service to be held tomorrow in respect to the men from this district who gave their lives in the great war. Five years have gone since the armistice was signed, but time does not obscure the glory of those who perished that freedom might live. Our obligations to them is a debt that can never be paid. To refresh the memory of their valour and their sacrifice is a privilege, an honor and a duty.

GOLD FRANCS VERSUS PAPER MARKS.

German working men in the Ruhr want more pay, to keep pace with the increasing cost of living and the decreasing value of the mark. Numbers of them are reported to be taking employment with the French authorities, preferring to get paid in francs which have a known exchange value than in Berlin notes whose purchasing power tends rapidly toward the vanishing point. It will be a strange development if while the German Government is trying to keep the occupational forces its own printing presses are strengthening the French grip on the district by driving the German populace into French employ. In that case those authorities who told the world that the French occupation of the Ruhr could accomplish nothing will have some more explaining to do.

A CAMPAIGN OF MISREPRESENTATION.

A letter from a farmer at Jarro, Alberta, says that when being canvassed to sign the wheat pool contract he was told that "all the elevators are joining the wheat pool," and that "the farmers must sign the contract in order to have a market for their grain."

The disciples of Saprio have certainly caught their inspiration from him in full measure. The difference between the farmer who signs and the one who does not is that the farmer who signs must market his wheat where the pool takes him; while the man who does not sign can market it as he does now—that is where he pleases. So far as heard from no elevators have yet been required by the pool, and there is no certainty that any will be.

The Grain Act provides that storage room must be given by country elevators to all producers of grain (whether members of a pool or not, and whether the elevators belong to a pool or not).

RESTORING RESPONSIBILITY.

The purchasing committee at Ottawa has been abolished and the editorial committee cashiered. Which means that in the matters of buying supplies for the public service, and of preparing and distributing departmental reports, the Ministers are resuming the duties which properly attach to their offices, and that to this extent responsible government is being restored. Perhaps in the course of time they will also venture to fire the Civil Service Commission, get rid of an army corps of surplus employees with which the service has been loaded up, and re-establish the departmental staffs upon the basis that a Government job involves doing work as well as drawing pay. Of course there will be howls from the discharged officials, and wails from that section of press and public which puts its faith in bureaucracy rather than democracy. That cannot be helped. There is no other road to efficiency and economy, and no other way to replace the management of public affairs in the hands of the representatives of the taxpayers.

WHY THE RUSH?

The disciples of Saprio propose to revolutionize the system of marketing the wheat of this year's crop. They are to establish a new organization, with ample facilities for economical handling and successful marketing. They must enlist a staff of officers and agents; they must acquire elevator facilities; they must secure selling connections on both sides of the ocean and in several countries in time to handle the crop.

What harvest has commenced in the three prairie provinces. Already it is well advanced in Manitoba. Next week will see it in full blast throughout Alberta and Saskatchewan. Market follows cutting, or indeed accompanies it. The first step to secure agents, elevators and selling connections has not yet been taken. Grain must be sold in Europe in advance of delivery, and delivery cannot be guaranteed until the means of handling has been provided. There is no possibility of any organization such as was proposed by Saprio being ready to handle the crop of this year on the world's market. The objective of the whirlwind campaign is not to market the wheat but to tie up the farmer.

If the pool can't function this year—and it certainly can't function efficiently—there is no reason for the pool drive being put on during the first and most intensely busy week of harvest unless the intention is to rush the farmer into something that he could not get into otherwise. Saprio was wise when he asserted the pool could be organized—that is, the farmers could be signed up—within 80 days. He knew better than his hearers that if it could not be done in 80 days it could not be done at all.

THE BRITISH HARVESTERS.

A Winnipeg despatch on Wednesday broadcast reports that a number of British harvesters there, and some at a few other points in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, were not able to get any harvesting to do. Jobs were scarce, the complainants said, and some of them for whom places had been found were discharged after a short try-out. The substance of their protest was that they had been enticed to Canada by misrepresentation, that western farmers did not want inexperienced men from overseas, and the Dominion Government was asked to give financial assistance to the victims of fraud and prejudice. The story sounded bad. If it is true in essentials the men concerned have been badly treated. But that the matter is exactly as stated is rather hard to believe in view of the circumstances. The complainants are comparatively few in number, apparently not more than a hundred all told. It is said that ten thousand harvesters have been brought over. Where are the others, and why are they not heard from if they were beguiled by false pretences and cannot get work? It has to be assumed that the great alliance majority have found places and are able to hold them. The inference is that the hard luck story represents the experience and views of only a trifling minority, and in these cases it may easily be that the fault is not all on one side. The despatch which recites their troubles mentions that most of the men in question are "artisans and tradesmen" from the cities of the old lands. Perhaps that is why they have not fitted quickly and satisfactorily into the scheme of things on the farm. To bring a man from the other side of the ocean, land him on a western farm, hand him a pitch fork and tell him to function is something of an experiment at best.

The wonder is not that a few of the new-comers do not seem to fit, but that all but a handful of them appear to have adapted themselves to the conditions and to be doing as well as could be expected. Of course any able-bodied man can perform in a harvest field, after a fashion. But when ten thousand or so men who have never done any farm work are transported half way around the world and flung into the hurly-burly of harvest time on the prairies it is not to be expected that every individual will give satisfaction to his employer and find things agreeable to himself. The second element enters into the calculation, and there are harvesters and harvesters, and farmers and farmers. The Canadian Pacific Railway, which is credited with having brought the British harvest hands to Canada, undertook a great task in so doing, and a heavy responsibility as well. Without that imported labor the crop could hardly have been handled at all. Even with it there is work for all who can be induced to take it. It is to be supposed that the men who came needed work. The country certainly needs their services. There is no scarcity of work for all of them, though more or less shuffling about and readjusting may have to be done before all are satisfactorily placed. The difficulties, and an occasional outbreak from harvesters or from farmer employers, should not obscure the fact that a great enterprise has been undertaken by the railway company and carried out with success. It has been demonstrated that men can be got to migrate to Canada in large numbers from Great Britain if they are offered the chance to earn a living. Of those who have come many will remain. And the undertaking shows how in future years it may be possible to get help to handle the harvest and to also gain settlers of the most desirable type.

Current Comment

THE NEW PRESIDENT

The new president, Mr. Calvin Coolidge, is no novice in politics, having held office in Massachusetts for twenty years and reaching the position of governor of that state. He is described as a man of "moderate rugged bonny, simplicity of habits, courage, inflexible moral and political principles, and a strong sense of duty." He is generally associated with the pioneer stock from which he sprang in character and mentality, indeed, he is said to differ little from Mr. Harding whom he succeeds. There will be no variation in legislation and probably enough, few if any changes in executive office. He will be carried on his back and it is the knowledge that the death of a president disturbs neither domestic nor foreign policy of the government which makes business unaffected even by so startling a sudden and shocking an event as the death of Mr. Harding.

'DUTY BOUND'

They always meet me at the gate,
And frolic round and round,
Hunting for things I would have ate
Were I not duty bound.

I love to watch them as they search
And hear their merry cries,
When one of them has found a peach
Among the cakes and pies.

I will admit 'twas out of place,
But they don't seem to mind;
Nor linger long to think of grace,
But eat the treasured find.

Then clamb'ring up, an arm to each,
My two dear kiddies crawl,
Until my shoulders safe they reach
When I am King of all.

And thus we go to greet our Queen,
And tell her of our love;
Standing amid the homely scene
Before the kitchen stove.

To supper then we all sit down,
A regular Royal Spread;
A juicy steak, potatoes brown,
And doughnuts 'stead of bread.

Yet some maintain my life is bare,
And wonder why I plug;
They do not like the clothes I wear,
Still less my careless shrug.

But all the wealth of earth untold
I'd not exchange for this;
My darlings in my arms to fold,
And feel their Good-Night Kiss.

T. LLOYD FINLAYSON.

FORTY-ONE YEARS AGO

From The Edmonton Bulletin of August 19, 1882.

Frank Prevost cut some wheat on Tuesday of last week (August 8). Geo. Rath finished cutting his wheat on Tuesday (August 13). Burdock of the latter settlement (the Highlands) sowed about a pint of fall wheat last fall, but before the freeze-up. Of course it did not come up until this spring, but since the grain was sound and was ready to cut last Saturday (August 13). The early rose potatoes in Chief Pastor Hardisty's garden, was being dug. They are fully ripe.

Thirty thousand feet of lumber is being rafted at the Edmonton mill (the D. R. Fraser Co.) for A. Macdonald and C. Rutherford. Mr. Deane, D.L.M. has got through cutting the dividing line between the river lots in town.

On Friday August 11, a tremendous wind and rain storm traversed the country west of Edmonton. The storm was felt as far west as the White Mud, where there were broken off like pine shanks, on Friday night there was another heavy rain, and on Sunday the river began to rise, carrying down large quantities of drift-wood. On Monday it was several feet higher than it has been at any time during the summer.

A letter was received last mail from C. B. Shelton, who left Edmonton last spring. It is dated from the city of the Quakapelle country, in the Washington territory. He says that the country there is filled up rapidly. Then look for the site of the great city of the future to be at the C.P.R. crossing of the Pitt of House Creek. The local grange commenced work there about the 15th of July.

Concerning a Neighbor of Yours

Without Industries Agricultural Centres Rarely Exceed 12,000 Population

The largest agricultural centres in America which are without industries, rarely exceed 12,000 people, and the young men and women of these communities when age and circumstances compel them to become self-supporting leave home and seek livelihoods elsewhere.

Many a mother and father today is anxiously surveying the Edmonton field of opportunity for their growing boy or girl.

The "G.W.G." is an institution which has laid a solid foundation for the great Alberta textile industry of the future—the most quickly realizable hope of profitable and permanent employment for hundreds more of Edmonton's future citizenry.
